THE TELEGRAPH SYSTEM OF AMERICA.

Remarkable Results of a Storm.

New York, Nov. 14.—The storm which swept up through the Atlantic States from the Gulf Saturday and last night, developed into a gale of hurricane force as it moved up, resulted in the most complete tie-up of wire communication that the East has experienced since the memorable snowstorms of 1888, disarranged train schedules, paralyzed trolley lines and piled several wrecks along the coast.

A downpour of rain and heavy snow, which accompanied the storm, added to the destructive force of the gale. Telephone and telegraph poles, broken down by the weight of snow and ice-covered wires, gave way before the sweep of the wind and whole sections of country were cut off.

Both the telegraph companies and the telephone companies with long distance wire-to-day reported their fields of operation restricted to the territory bounded on the west by Philadelphia, on the east by Boston, and on the north by Newburgh, N. Y.

The big brokerage concerns in Wall Street, many of whom, under normal conditions, operate thousands of miles of wire, to-day found themselves were no more fortunate and the only quotations received from Chicago and New Orleans were the press market reports. These quotations were the only figures obtained from the cotton and grain centres of the South and West.

By an elaborate system of relays and the use of both telephone and telegraph wires, the Associated Press succeeded in bridging the path between East and West cut by the storm and reached all points west, north and east with the exception of a section in the vicinity of Albany. There the damage from the snow and wind seemed beyond immediate repair, and with the exception of trains, there was no communication with that section during the day.

The general breakdown of wires was also responsible for trouble on the railroads. The movements of trains could not be reported, and delays extending into hours in many cases were reported.

That no more disasters at sea resulted from the gale probably was due to the early warning of the approaching hurricane sent out by the Weather Bureau. Bulletins sent out Saturday afternoon told of the gale that would sweep the coast, and cautioned all mariners against leaving port.

The chief damage attributable to the storm was the crippling of telephone, telegraphic and electric light service throughout northern and eastern New England. One of the most singular effects of the gale was reported from Hennellville, Me., where a whale eight feet long was blown ashore. Unable to get back into deep water, the great creature lay helpless on the beach and a bullet from a hunter's rifle ended its life. Clear and cold weather followed in the wake of the storm.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.

Out off from the East by the destruction of telegraph and telephone wires, the Chicago brokers to-day resorted to extraordinary expedients in their efforts to establish communication with their New York offices. More than a dozen messages were sent by way of San Francisco, Honolulu, Yokohama, and thence around the world. But no replies were received in time to be of value to to-day's trading. In other instances messages were dispatched from New York by the twenty-four-hour flies, which leave Chicago after noon, the hope being that the fast train would be able to reach the metropolis before the opening of the Stock Exchange in the morning. Still another expedient was to telegraph orders to Rochester or Buffalo, in which cities the wires were in operation, and these orders were mailed to New York.

It was the most complete tie-up of wire service that the Stock Exchange has known in the last sixteen years. It was a nerve-wracking day for the traders. There was no time to tell which prices were going up or down, and if it had been known there would have been no way of stopping the loss or of taking profits. There was absolutely no trading during the day between Chicago and New York, but the local trading was the largest of the year.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

YESTERDAY, in Paris, Russia stepped into the dock before the small Court of Inquiry appointed by the Powers—and the larger Court of the World, self-constituted—to stand her trial for murder on the Dogger Bank. The proceedings will be of intense interest, not merely on account of the enormity of the crime, but more because a wondering world will be anxiously awaiting some startling denouement.

The defence which will be put forward should, in itself, prove instructive, as well as amusing, to lawyers and laymen, too, if the attempts already made by ingenious and industrious officials in St Petersburg to cover up the guilt can be taken as any criterion. Russia is not an ordinary criminal; and being somewhat different from the generality of what Carlyle would call the 'Devil's brigade,' she can be relied upon to have a coterie of barristers and lawyers in keeping to conduct her case. The single object towards which they will be expected to direct their intelligence, their ability, and their energy will be the clearing of the Baltic fleet officers by fair means or foul, and since fair means have apparently already been exhausted, foul ones have been resorted to. The subornation of witnesses for the other side is the last resort of the lawyer with a bad case, and there is evidence that Russian emissaries have already endeavoured to find what magnetic influence gold has upon a Hull fisherman. St Petersburg, according to our cablegram published elsewhere, denies knowledge of any attempts to buy men to commit perjury, but that is the very shallowest of defences. In all probability she is really ignorant of the fact that certain Hull fishermen have been offered bribes to say they saw what they did not see, but it is certain she knew her agents were given unlimited powers to obtain evidence that her fleet was justified in opening fire when it did. It is terrible to think that there are any Englishmen—especially fishermen from the fleet so outrageously attacked—who would ever entertain the thought of accepting such money, let alone taking it, but it would be interesting to know what influence was brought to bear upon the skipper of the trawler Gull to make the statement which he has given voice to; it was in effect that during the consternation caused by the firing he saw a vessel approaching his steamer which he felt convinced was a torpedo boat, but later on he found out she was the trawler Crane. It will be puzzling to even a landlubber to know how a trawler—especially those perky-looking north sea boats—can be mistaken for a torpedo boat, and when a fisherman, whose life has been spent amongst such craft, has the audacity to say he imagined the Crane to be other than what she was, there is certainly room in one's mind for the entrance of the gravest suspicion. On the face of it, and in view of the fact that Russian agents are looking out to purchase any excuse to justify the deeds of the Baltic fleet, the story of the skipper of the Gull looks extremely 'fishy,' and it is humiliating to contemplate that others might be bought to go further and declare that she was a torpedo boat. Immediately the Gull's captain alleged that he was mistaken—the Russians seized upon the statement and asked if it was not reasonable that they—who were not familiar with fishing trawlers, and who were on the look-out for hostile vessels—should make a mistake when even a fisherman was taken in. In fact the Russian idea seems to be that if there were no Japanese torpedo boats among the trawling fleet, their officers thought there were, and a simple mistake is no matter for punishment. Lord Lansdowne, on the other hand, is compelled to insist on the terms proclaimed by Mr. Balfour, at Southampton, and though we are the least blood-thirsty of peoples, the British nation is with him. The blood of our fellow countrymen has been shed and someone must be punished for it. We have not the slightest malice against officers or men on the Erindale Fleet, but the life of the humblest trawler justly outweighs the amour propre of Russia, and on this principle we stand firmly in all circumstances. We have to hope that the fishermen who are alive to day will stand by their dead comrades and simply give the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. No more, no less is wanted. It is well that at least someone amongst them has informed the Government that subornation was being attempted. It helps us to sift the matter to the bottom, and further helps the world to a better appreciation of Russia's real worth.

It is rather anomalous that many people go to Macao solely for a change and come back with any.

THE SHERWOODS AT SINGAPORE.

Evidently the Sherwood Foresters are not settling down well in Singapore. The following appears in Singapore papers:

The Sherwood Foresters have not had time to properly install themselves in Singapore just yet. We understand that on their first night at the Tanglin Barracks

some of the officers had to sleep on the floor

as there had been no time to obtain the necessary furniture.

We understand that there is some difficulty in furnishing the baggage of the Sherwood Foresters. A case of smallpox occurred on board the Arcoa and the baggage was sent on afternoon to the fumigating chamber at the foot of Palmer.

It is alleged that next day when the engineer came to work the machinery he found that all the brass fittings had been stolen.

Hargrove & Co., are putting in new fittings. It is presumed that as no one is left on the premises a thief came in by one of the windows and removed the brass.

It is expected that the work of fumigating will be proceeded with to-day.

ATHLETE 'RUN-DOWN.'

STUNNING EFFECT OF DR WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE.

"Run-down," worn out, short of breath, lagged by the hot weather, with no appetite, tired back and aching head, is the state of those who need a tonic. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the finest tonic ever discovered, because they make New Blood. They improve the appetite at once.

"I NEVER knew illness until I was thirty-seven," said Mr. Temple Jones, once famous as Champion Jumper, "and that's two years ago. Then I had a very bad experience, and it nearly killed me. The Doctor said I had Pleurisy, with inflammation of the lungs. He was a clever man and did me good, but the complaint left me."

UPRIGHT RUN-DOWN.

I could not take food, and was so weak that I could hardly crawl. I had read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and tried them.

The result was simply marvellous. The pills (which are tonic, not purgative) began to take effect almost at once. I had only taken a very few doses when the desire for food returned. My appetite daily improved, my strength returned, and I had still part of my first battle left when I was completely built up again, and able to follow my business as usual. Now I feel as well as ever I did.

"No speedier nor more striking cure than mine could possibly be desired."

Mr. Jones, now living at the Recreational Tavern, Hobson-street, B-lton, England, gave these facts to the representative of the Bolton Chronicle. His case is like that of thousands, who, without being actually ill, have not enough strength for full health.

It is new blood that gives strength, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People that make new blood, new appetite, new vigour.

Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. have no objection to refer all persons who recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, not to a Tonic, but also for the cure of Pneumonia, Locomotor Atrophy, Rheumatism, Sciatica, and Kidney Disease; diseases arising from Impoverishment of the blood, Scrofula, Rickets, Chronic Enteropelias, Consumption of the Bowels and Lungs, Anæmia, Pale and Sallow Complexion, General Weakness, Loss of Appetite, Palpitations, Palms in the Back, Nervous Headache, Neuralgia, Early Decay, Ladies Weakness, and Hysteria. These pills are genuine only with the full name, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and are sold by chemists, and by Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., at 2s. 9d. per bottle or six bottles for 13s. 9d. Buyers are invited to write to Dr. Williams' Correspondence Dept., 46 Holborn Viaduct, London, with description of symptoms.
